We may also ask you for information if you report a problem with our Site. If you contact us, we may keep a record of that correspondence. If you provide us with personal information relating to any third party, you confirm that you have received that third party's consent in relation to such disclosure and that the third party has been informed of, and agrees to the Privacy Statement and the purposes for which we may process and use that person's personal information.

IP Addresses and Cookies

When you access our Site, your computer's browser provides us with information such as your IP address, browser type, access time and referring URL, which is collected and used to compile statistical data on the use of our Site. This information may be used to help us to improve our Site and the Services we offer.

Our Site uses cookies. A cookie is a small text file that is generated by our Site, sent to a user's browser and stored on the hard drive of the user's computer. The purpose of cookies is to store information relating to users of our Site. Cookies store user information including IP addresses, navigational data and user preferences. Our Site uses session cookies that are stored temporarily on a user's computer and are not retained when the user ends the session. Some browsers do not support cookies and other browsers provide a way to turn off cookie functionality by changing the settings on the browser. Turning off cookie functionality on your browser may affect your ability to access and/or use certain parts of our Site.

We have Google Analytics and Crazy Egg added to our pages in order to assist us in redeveloping our websites. Google analytics and Crazy Egg allow us to measure and learn in aggregate how our website is being used, and to see for example, which are the most popular pages. This will help us ensure we provide relevant information in an easily accessible format.
